SCHOOL FAIR

The Ambition to be the Best Fully Realized

Four to five hundred delighted boys and girls was the inspiring spectacle of the Vulcan and district school fair on Saturday. The day was perfect and the sun and the satisfaction which beamed from the countenance of the assembled youth warmed the interest of the parents, the promoters, and the people, and the multitude acclaimed their satisfaction in having contributed in some way to this wonderful success.

It was play-day for the boys and girls, the one day in the year when the students of the schools in every direction assembled at Vulcan and have a real day all their own. But they work before they play, and the evidence of this was the immense display of their genius and handiwork in the thousand of articles entered for the competition in the many classes, which includes everything from nature study to art and agriculture.

The exhibits were splendidly laid in the curling rink, a building well suited to the purpose and properly equipped for the occasion, and the hundreds who attended the fair were surprised and delighted with the big showing in every class. It is not intended to detail the exhibits more than in the list of prize winners which appears on the back page of this issue, suffice it to say in truth that the exhibits were greater by far than ever before and the quality was just as great as the quantity.

On the evening of the day before teachers and scholars and others interested came in cars and various conveyances, bringing with them the product of their labor in the school, the home and on the farm, and these attractively displayed constituted perhaps the man feature of what was the best fair ever held in Vulcan, and the splendid fact is that so many made their contributions to it.

Commencing well on time, in the new skating rink, which had been fitted for the event, was the chorus competition, spelling match and public speaking, features which always create keen interest as well as provide excellent entertainment, and this year was no exception, and the immense new rink never before contained nearly so large a crowd. Then there was the parade, the spectacular event of the program, and declared by the moving picture men, who are accustomed to such things, to be "the real stuff." Headed by officials of the fair, came a troop of boys and girls on horseback and some in school conveyances. Then there were the pupils and the teachers of the many schools, each forming a unit, and each bedecked or costumed in a manner calculated to receive consideration in the award for the school making the best appearance on parade. There were flags and banners in profusion, attractive devices, and a dazzling mixture of color, and as the boys and girls marched along even the busy business people joined the throng in watching the procession, and proud parents were joyful in the pleasure of the young folks, and there were not any who stood by who were not glad of their gift to the funds of fair. And it is interesting to know that this will be viewed here and there throughout this country and in other countries, for the cameraman took moving pictures of it all.

The parade terminated at the exhibition park and here, while the pupils were giving their school yells, more were made of Miss Mary Doyle, winner of the spelling match, and Miss Pearl Zang, winner in oratory, the latter in the attitude of addressing the multitude all of whom put action into the picture by swinging their arms and waving their hats and otherwise giving evidence of the real joy that was in them.

The last event of this great day was the athletic contests, and it was indeed real sport, in some of the classes their being twenty to thirty starters, and while all of these were striving to win the prizes, the non contestants were gambling and running about and doing every manner of thing that gives pleasure to youth and the little folks. It was past eight when tired officials and the last of the happy throng were permitted to go.

The object of the fair from every angle was well attained and the school day in Vulcan this year will ever be a fond memory to perhaps six hundred kiddies.

Can we not all support a proposition like that?—we do.

Hon. J. L. Cote, former member of the Alberta Legislature and Alberta Government, and recently appointed to the Canadian Senate, died in Quebec last week. He was for thirty years a resident of Alberta.

The butter fat production of Alberta for the seven months ending July 21st shows an increase of over twenty per cent, the total output for the period being 8,940,975 pounds as against 7,443,767 in the same period in 1923.

LOCAL ITEMS

Ask for La Rochon cigars—every one branded on the side.

Born, at the Vulcan hospital, on September 24, 1924, to Mr. and Mrs. Bert Watson, of Travis, a son.

Messrs. Berry & Son have opened their auto agency in Vulcan and have been doing business for a week.

The person who was seen taking a wheel from a plow on the premises of McIntyre & Co. will have the privilege of a few days in which to return same. A word to the wise.

Born, on September 22, 1924 to Mr. and Mrs. John Duguid, of Vulcan, a son. This little lad is the only brother to five sisters, and proud parents are receiving showers of congratulations.

The dance on Thursday night at the opera house was a splendid success, their being a large attendance and the music by the Plaza orchestra was such as has made this organization famous.

To meet the demand for houses in Vulcan, we understand that Mr. Lambert plans for the construction of at least three, and it would appear that his enterprise will have ready reward.

The inspector of picture houses was in town this week and made some suggestions for the improvement in the equipment of the local house, and these will have the willing ready attention of Manager Robson.

Postmaster Elves went by auto on the journey to the coast with his brother Fred, and in a few days, after the latter and the family have got settled in the city, will return to Vulcan.

It has been suggested that the skating rink might be used for basketball games during the next month or two. It's a good idea, and it would be interesting to know what the girls who play the game think about it.

An incident of interest that has not been recorded before in these columns is a Vulcan long-distance telephone record, Mrs. Lindsay recently having had clear and uninterrupted conversation with friends at Winnipeg.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Russell left Vulcan this week to reside in Calgary, and we lose two good citizens. Mr. Russell, as was reported before, sold the Club billiard parlor and barber shop which he has conducted successfully for some time.

Oh, joy! Word comes that the giant stride, and other things for the playground park have reached Lethbridge on their way to Vulcan. These will likely be installed this fall if weather permits, and we have a lot of good weather in Alberta in October.

Messrs. Gus Speth and Jack Levi are associated now in the management of the Alberta feed and livery barn, the one down opposite the Vulcan Co-operative, and with the improvements made on the place and the knowledge they have of the business, excellent service is assured.

Mr. James P. Rogers, who is one of our several subscribers who reside in the States and have land investments in the Vulcan district, handed the editor two and a half the other day to pay for his paper, and this happy meeting was made the occasion for the statement that he was returning home highly pleased with the returns of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. E. Gibson are entertaining as their guests Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Olden, parents of Mrs. Gibson. They come from Dublin, Ireland, leaving that interesting country on September 12th, and the journey has been of decided interest to them all along the way. They were in several places in Eastern Canada, and after a look about this in last great West will make the return via New York. Everybody had a great time.

Mr. W. A. McKenzie has this week joined the staff of the local branch of the Bank of Commerce, and like all desirable citizens, will get the glad land in Vulcan. His coming has another line of real interest, for he has fame as a hockey player, and it is figured that we will have some team in Vulcan this winter.

Rev. J. N. Brunton conducted services at Alston on Sunday last, and members of the junior choir of the Union Church twenty-five or more, went along to assist in the service, and the music by this splendid organization was truly appreciated. The good people at Alston reciprocated in the kindness and members of the choir and friends with them were hospitably received and entertained.

"A penny a day while you are away" is a plan of contribution adopted by the members of the Union Church Ladies' Aid, and friends of the organization, the idea being to continue revenue to the treasury during the suspension of activities more or less during the summer and while people are away on holidays, and this organization, which has been a mighty aid to church enterprise, has maintained a record that is indeed one of real credit to the membership.

Born, at the Vulcan hospital, on September 29, 1924, to Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Lawrence, a daughter.

Born, at the Vulcan hospital, on September 23, 1924, to Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Berkines, of Armada, a son. Died on September 24th.

It is just as much in the interest of this community for business men to have their printing done by their local printer as it is for residents of this district to patronize their local business men. Those who fail to support their home newspaper cannot logically complain about the inroads of the mail order house.

The new residence under construction for Mr. Jack Wolfe is just about completed, and is certainly a fine one, and will appear to advantage on grounds that have been so splendidly laid out and improved. This new house is in a section where there are many of the nice homes for which the town is noted.

It is just now only a little more than a month until Armistice Day, and not too long of time to make preparations for the proper observance of the same. Last year Vulcan omitted the ceremonial which had in times past been so impressive and interesting, and if we are to again give public recognition to this day, truly a great one in the history of the empire, it is not too soon to commence the making of arrangements.

The books and equipment of the Vulcan Public Library have been removed to a new location in the D. C. Jones drug store, and the board of management has arranged for Mrs. Lindsay to succeed to the position of secretary and service for the change of books will be given every afternoon from three to six o'clock. Patrons of the library are requested to observe the announcement of this change and to note the hours of service.

Dr. Wark introduced to The Advocate man the other day Dr. W. W. Almond, who will be his successor in the practice of medicine and surgery at Vulcan, and who will occupy the same office apartments in the bank block. Dr. Almond has had valuable experience and fine success in the practice of his profession, and has the appearance and the manner of a man who will make a good citizen. With his wife and family of three children, he will come next week to reside with us.

A number of articles were lost or taken from the rink by mistake after the school fair on Saturday, and it is requested that these be returned to Secretary Nelson, who has at his office a hood, hat, toque, fiddle, cake tin, and a book, which may be had by the owners. With the immense number of articles on exhibit it is not surprising that a few things should get astray, in fact it might be expected, but it is hoped that not any one of these will be dishonestly retained. Anything like that might injure the fair in future.

Under the scheme recently inaugurated by Hon. Geo. Hoadley, Minister of Agriculture, with the overseas settlement board, whereby British young men are to come to Alberta for special training at the Vermillion School of Agriculture, with a view later of placing them on farms, some 50 applications have already been received by the settlement board in London. Although the stipulation was that not less than 100 were to be sent out in the first party, application has been made to the department in Edmonton to have the fifty young men sent out at once to commence their training.

By Royal Proclamation, His Excellency, the Governor General of Canada has designated October 5th to 11th as Fire Prevention Week. During that week, lessons on fire prevention subjects will be given in the schools, public meetings will be held in many of the larger cities, towns and villages, and the owners and occupants of property everywhere throughout Canada will be counselled to give special attention to the removal of fire hazards from their premises. Here in Vulcan prizes are usually given to school pupils for essays on the subject "Fire Prevention", and it is expected that this will be continued this year.

The district conference of the Women's Institute of the Little Bow constituency was held in Vulcan on Monday. The several branches in the district were well represented by the one hundred and fifty ladies in attendance. Details have not yet been furnished to us, but our information is that it was certainly a most successful conference, there being a very interesting program of addresses and discussions, and splendid reports from the several institutes, and from the latter it appears that Good Deeds is the banner institute of the district. The Women's Institute is an organization which has place and favor everywhere because of the excellence of its accomplishments, and Vulcan always gives glad welcome to its members and representatives.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The King's proclamation declaring Monday, November 10 (Armistice Day) "as a day of general thanksgiving," throughout Canada was published in last week's issue of the Canada Gazette.

Nearly twenty-five per cent increase is expected to be recorded this year in the production of Alberta creamery butter over the production of 1923. The production last season was 17,750,000 pounds and this year an output of about 22,000,000 is expected.

Keep your eye on the unemployed boy. He needs something to work off that superfluous energy and as soon as he is idle the opportunities for him getting into devilment are increased. It is the duty of every adult to keep a fatherly eye over the growing boy.

Honestly, now, have you ever stopped to consider what your home town would be like, if everyone sent all his orders to the city? If everyone, in every town, followed the example of the mail order buyer, there would soon be no small towns and the big cities would be the only place where employment might be found.

It is very satisfactory to learn that there is a possibility of a tremendous development in the business of shipping cattle to Japan via Vancouver. According to H. A. Craig, deputy minister of Agriculture for Alberta, in a shipment recently made, the cattle arrived in Japan in perfect condition, some of them being heavier after their arrival than when they left Vancouver. A shipment made from Australia to Japan a short time ago, the cattle all died while crossing the equator. Another shipment of cattle is being made this week, and a continuous trade is anticipated all of which is fine news to the Alberta stock growers.

Sir Henry Thornton says the day is approaching when United States will cease to export wheat and will then be dependent on Canada for its main supplies of staple foodstuffs. There is no question about it. Meanwhile the Republican party is doing its utmost to embarrass the free movement of trade between any one section of the continent and all others, and this Canada will no doubt bear in mind when that time arrives. A policy that will remove such barriers between Canada and U. S. looks progressive. And the one best chance of election for John W. Davis lies in making American people see that the Republican policy of high tariffs is not only inimical to the interests of the present generation but is retarding the progress of the whole continent hundreds of years.

The people of England were delighted to have the King and Queen of Belgium pay them a "flying visit" last week. They arrived in London unheralded travelling as ordinary passengers in an airplane. The visit of the popular Belgian monarchs to England was a purely informal one. King George and Queen Mary did not know about the visit until they saw it recorded in the newspapers, for the British court is now at Balmoral in Scotland, while King Albert and his good wife are staying at a west end hotel. The first day they dropped into a west end tea shop and participated in the national afternoon rite of the British as though they were just "folks." Afterwards they occupied a seat on one of the double deck omnibuses and saw the city, all the while not being recognized. King Albert and Premier MacDonald met and had "tea" together. These democratic "stunts" on the part of their majesties surprised and interested the people of England.

EDITORIAL PARAGRAPHS

Fred White, M.L.A., for Calgary, in an address given recently at Calgary, said that the programme laid down by the Labor party in Britain, met with the approval of the general mass of people. The party has a sincere desire to contribute towards the sum total of human happiness out to the wealth of the world, believing that there is too wide a divergence between the wealth of some and the poverty of others.

The present trend of the wheat market indicates that the price for 1924 wheat will be considerably higher than was realized for the 1923 crop. The cash return for the entire wheat crop for 1924 is expected easily to reach $380,000,000, of which the greater part will go to the prairie provinces. Much of the wheat will be sold through the pools, with corresponding increase in revenue to the farmers. The pool has fixed $1.00 as the preliminary payment this year, whereas the average final payment last year was $1.01.

What a bright and glorious future Canada has. Robert Babson, an American who has made a great name for himself, says, the dominion of Canada is the richest country in the world in natural resources, dominating the world with its control of raw materials, with Vancouver the greatest seaport on the Pacific Coast and with the states importing grain from Canada. The prediction is based on the sanest reasoning on well established conditions. Canada has the situation, it has the enormous and profitable wheat fields, wonderful grazing lands for cattle, it has the natural resources which now means commercial power, and it has the vacant spaces that must be filled. In looking into our future, Babson does so without enthusiasm and without prejudice. He is simply guided by facts and his prediction is a happy one for Canada.

The season for winter sport is approaching and the question of success is uppermost in the minds of those interested. Success may be of two kinds. It may be measured by the results obtained, or simply by the satisfaction derived through seriously attempting to play the game, win or lose. A happy combination of both, however, may be attained through the players working together and, to achieve this, a serious omission in most games—inference to practice—must be overcome. Time and again games have been spoiled for the players themselves and also for the spectators by individuals donning a uniform when quite unfit to stand the strenuous pace which most games impose. The old copy book headline, "Practice makes perfect," aptly applies to sport and is a positive necessity if success is to be assured throughout the season. Without practice professional sport would not exist but because of it people are willing to pay and pay well for the privilege of watching experts in their particular game. Amateur sport can be made as successful and more interesting if the players will but keep themselves fit and practice together more.

Speaking of income tax returns, it would appear that Canadians must continue paying until all time. While most of the war taxes have been swept off the books in the U.S., in New Zealand and other countries, Canada continues to tax the inhabitants at the same old rate. Here a man with a $3000 income pays $40 tax; in the United States the same income pays $7.50. Here a $4,000 income pays $80; in the States it pays $22.50. A $5,000 income here pays $126; in Butte, Montana it pays $37.50. A $6,000 income here pays $178.50; and there it pays $57.50. Canada should reduce expenditures instead increasing as it has the past year. Let the government cut out political patronage and economy in all branches and it will not be necessary to continue the abnoxious income tax.

There is employed on the Edmonton Journal staff some one possessed of an imagination that does justice to a fiction writer. Last week we read of fake interview with the Editor of The Times about the Prince of Wales and again on Saturday an article that Edmonton had been selected as the headquarters for the Dominion Government Aerial forestry patrol in future. Major Cuffe, officer commanding the High River station, says so far as his instructions go, "there will be no extension of the air patrol to Northern Alberta, and the story is the result of pure imagination on the part of a newspaperman." Not only is the High River station to continue in its present location, but five new machines are being added to the establishment this year. All of which makes quite a different story from that as reported in the Edmonton papers.

In a recent issue we criticized the leniency displayed by Justice Cavelly at Chicago when he gave a sentence of life imprisonment to Leopold and Loeb, two of the most callous murderers that ever appeared before a court for sentence. Last week, Hillsbeck, who was sentenced to hang for beating his boy to death last winter near Hanna, received word that his sentence was changed from hanging by the neck, to life imprisonment. The crime was a most revolting one, but circumstances suggested that it had been committed in a fit of passion rather than with malice aforethought. From what we can learn of the case, it would appear that a mistake has been made in showing leniency to this man. There is not much excuse for a parent who allows his temper to gain such mastery over him. Hillsbeck displayed extreme cruelty in the treatment of his children and the easing of the penalty in this case looks like a serious mistake.

OBSERVE THE SABBATH

Officials of the Lords Day Alliance in Canada were in close consultation with Mayor Webster of Calgary on Monday, in question with the enforcement of the Lords Day Act and they intimated as follows:

That Sunday concerts when held for gain, be strictly suppressed.
That radio broadcasting of concerts by paid singers be stopped on Sunday.
That local police continue to enforce strictly, the regulation against the sale of gasoline on Sunday.

There was nothing said about golf, not a word. Mayor Webster asked what about paid choir singers at Church services which were broadcasted on Sunday, and the reply was made there was no such condition, that 10 choir singers in Calgary were paid for their services on Sunday. This interference is causing considerable criticism on the part of the average layman and the criticism is rapidly developing into a roar. There are striving times ahead of us.

GIVE HER CREDIT

How much of a man's success is due to his wife? Just take a few minutes and check off the men of your acquaintance who have made good and see how often the wife has been a help instead of a hindrance. Study the home life of most men who have made money and success in business, and you will find their wives have been thrifty women. Contrast these successful partnerships with those where the wife is a gadfly and a social climber, and you will be surprised to find how often the rule proves good. More men are made or unmade by their wives than by any other human agency. Back of every successful man you will find a sensible woman. And most of them get mighty little credit for it.

By Charles Clark

Swansea is but an hours ride from Cardiff, and there the Editorial party spent a very enjoyable and instructive but very arduous day. Upon arrival we were received by our host, Sir Alfred Mond, the mayor of Swansea, and other representative citizens of the city. Entering motor coaches we inspected the harbour and docks, tugs later being placed at our disposal. Swansea's chief industry is anthracite coal, as contrasted with the steam coal of Cardiff. In both coal centres we saw immense provision for handling coal. The combined tonnage handled in and out of the South Wales ports, of which there are five, is greater than that of London. Swansea is the centre of the anthracite coal industry, and we saw a vessel loading for Montreal. By the way, the best anthracite (which is said to be much superior to the American), sells in London at 88 shillings (19.80) a ton. This coal also is very popular in France. But it is not shipped to Canada which is sent a grade that sells in London at 55 shillings.

It was at Swansea we were accorded a characteristic Welsh welcome. It was a combined reception and dinner, and the enthusiasm displayed by our new found friends was very gratifying and convinced us that Wales is equally appreciative of the work of Canada's soldiers in the great war and that here, as well as elsewhere in the United Kingdom, there is a sincere desire to unite more closely the bonds of friendship between Canada and the Motherland. The musical programme of the evening was very excellent, a massed choir of Welsh singers from one of the coal mines rendered a programme that will not be forgotten for some time by those who were fortunate enough to be present. They rendered "O Canada" and "The Maple Leaf Forever" with wonderful feeling and to me, I had to confess I had never heard it rendered with such expression as on that occasion. Wales made an impression upon the Editorial party that will live green in their memories. Swansea does not present as clean appearance as Cardiff but nevertheless it is a progressive city of about 150,000 people who are of an industrious nature and are not troubled very much in the matter of strikes and lockouts. Mingling among the people, one hears the Welsh language spoken mainly, particularly so among the mining classes.

Leaving Swansea, we spent five hours or so on a fast moving train passing through a very interesting country until we finally stopped at Chester, which is situated up in the north part of England and only an hours run from Liverpool. At Shrewsbury, Mr. Gascoigne, president of the Shropshire and North Wales newspaper owners association and other newspaper people joined our party and accompanied us to Chester.

Perhaps the quaintest, and in some respects the most picturesque, of the old cities we visited, was Chester. Chester was a bulwark for both the Romans and the Normans against the Britons who had been driven into the Welsh hills, and who were inclined to rally forth into the country that had been wrested from them. The central part of the city is surrounded by a wall, built originally by the Romans, and re-built and strengthened under direction of Edward I. The wall has been restored in modern times, and now an interesting feature for tourists, and a pleasant walk for the citizens. Chester cathedral also is a fine old building, dating back to Norman times. Half a dozen of us spent a most interesting hour in it, under the cicerone of Canon Thomas, who pointed out the special features. What perhaps was most interesting, because it was new to us, was wandering through the old monastery, the rooms of which have been restored and put to use. One of them is utilized as a library and reading room, and it is a striking tribute to the honesty, both of the people of Chester, and of visitors, that though there are many valuable old manuscripts and volumes, and no regular attendant, nothing is ever carried away. In the old dining hall we saw the desk from which a reader read to the monks while they were eating, it being a rule that they should partake in silence. But the most unique thing about Chester is the quaint old buildings. In other cities one would see occasional specimens of the architecture of several hundred years ago; but in Chester there are blocks of them. The stores are double deckers—the lower ones facing on the street, with a sidewalk above them, reached by a stair, and another row of stores facing this covered footway. They are good stores too, and the whole effect is neat and attractive.

An interesting feature of this city and its famous old wall, is that there are four gates, one on each side and it is possible for vehicular traffic to leave or enter the city only by one of these four. There is a small gate, to be used by persons only, which Edward I. allowed the monks to cut in the wall and which is still to this day locked every evening at 10 o'clock and opened at 6 in the morning, as an indication that the gate is still under control of the church. In the city hall we were told the clerk's office contained the city records dating back for over 300 hundred years, older records being kept elsewhere. There is an authentic list of mayors of the city dating back to the year 1250 A.D. The River Dee flows through the town of Chester, and it was of this river that Charles Kingsley wrote his well known poem "Mary Call the cattle home across the sands of Dee" and not of the river of that name in Scotland as is generally supposed. Here we were entertained to a sumptuous lunch by newspaper men of Chester, associated with the mayor, sheriff and city officials. Later we made a tour of the beauty spots of the place and ere we left the walled city, we were again entertained to afternoon tea.

We departed from Chester at 5:30 and arrived at Liverpool at 6:30 where we were accorded a hearty reception at the station by the Liverpool Press Club, followed later by a banquet and dinner at the invitation of the Liverpool newspapers. Thus you may well understand the day was strenuous as well as interesting. Liverpool proved a surprise to all. It is called the "gateway of the west" and is a fascinating centre of activity. We were there on ly 24 hours which was far too short a time for us to properly see the place. The commercial and maritime greatness of Liverpool is the result of a development that has been as rapid as that of many American cities. Two hundred years ago it had a population of 6000, mostly fishing folk. Today it has, with its suburbs about 1,200,000 people. It owes its rapid growth in population and wealth to its favorable position and splendid harbour. It is undoubtedly the "gateway of the west" for one third of the total imports of the country, passes through there, and its exports far exceed those of any other port in Great Britain, including London, so we were informed. Liverpool is located on the Mersey River, which is about 2000 feet in width at that point. The tide has considerable ebb and flow here, and for the accommodation of the passenger traffic across the river there is a huge floating landing stage, nearly half a mile in length. It really is nothing more or less than a floating dock, so that at no matter what height the river may be, there is no inconvenience experienced in landing or taking on passengers.

The Liverpool docks extend 6½ miles along the river, and possess 27 miles of quays. Birkenhead, across the river, forming part of the community, has 10 miles of quays. About 25,000 ships enter the port annually. Passenger vessels from all over the world land their passengers here, and the volume of freight handled is enormous. Still the freight and passenger traffic gives promise of increasing, and to cope with probable future requirements, huge developments known as the Gladstone Dock Scheme are under way, the cost of which will be about $35,000,000, giving three miles more of quays. T. M. Goodfellow, editor of the Whitby Gazette, who formed the Editorial party, secured much information and in one of his letters, says: "Liverpool is pre-eminent as a distributing centre, and in its enormous warehouses are to be found products of every country in the world. Of all the vast imports of Liverpool none approaches cotton in value. After being spun and woven in England, the bulk of the manufactured goods again pass through Liverpool as exports. The port is also famous for its wool exports, its rivalled cold storage facilities, its shipbuilding and ship repairing plants, its grain elevators (Liverpool being the second largest milling centre in the world), its immense tobacco warehouses, its leather and timber trade, and many other activities. It must not be supposed, however, that Liverpool is solely a manufacturing and shipping centre. It has many fine public buildings and institutions also. Here is situated the University of Liverpool, which though comparatively young, has contributed much in helping the white race to fight disease in tropical climates."

During our visit at Liverpool, the city was ablaze with bunting and flags the buildings being decorated for the visit of their Majesties the King and Queen on the following Saturday and Sunday, when they unveiled Liverpool's War Memorial and also dedicated the Liverpool Cathedral which has been under course of construction for 20 years, and will require many more years to complete the same. In company, with several of our party we endeavored to enter the building, but as that required a pass we were unable to enter, but an outside view would indicate the edifice was a wonderful piece of architecture. Before leaving Liverpool our party was tendered a dinner on our last night there upon which occasion deep appreciation was expressed for Canada and her people upon the noble stand taken during the last Great War. Here as elsewhere great consideration was shown us and a deep impression was made upon all for courtesies shown.

Readers of The Times are very familiar with those household words "Sunlight Soap". It was our pleasure to visit Port Sunlight, a few miles out from Liverpool to see the works of Lever Bros. manufacturers of "Sunlight Soap" and a hundred other kindred goods. The establishment, which Lord Leverhulme, the head, has 2000 employees. It is a model plant of which we have made reference in a special article. The town is composed entirely of employees of the firm, there being about 5000 population. The whole town was planned and built by Lever Bros. and all the houses are rented to the employees at cost of maintenance. There is a large church, presented to the town by Lord Leverhulme, as a memorial to his parents, a library, a park, a hall, fire department, etc., in fact everything a perfectly equipped town could desire. The whole community is a monument to the generosity and large heartedness of Lord Leverhulme. There is also Lady Levers Art Gallery said to contain the finest collection of paintings, tapestries and antiques in Great Britain. The whole building and contents was presented to the town by His Lordship in memory of his wife. At Port Sunlight in the wonderful banquet hall, a luncheon was given after we had viewed this ideal town, the chairman, being W. Hulme Lever, son of the head of the company, who by the way, bears a close resemblance to Mr. E. C. Capers of Kentucky Ranch, and has also the same mannerisms. He proved to be a genial host and a first class after dinner speaker. It was in response to the Hon. Hulme Levers speech of welcome, that Mr. Max Cormier, Editor of Madawaska, a French weekly, published at Edmundston, N.B., whose family has lived in the Maritime province, for three hundred years, said he was Acadia and was nearly 20 years of age before he learned the English language. He declared that there was not in the party of Canadian Editors, a stauncher Britisher than he and he vouched for the loyalty of his French Canadian confederates and compatriots. Mr. Cormier's obviously sincere speech directed attention to the fact that the ultimate loyalty of the British people is not based upon race, geography or creed, but is rendered to ideas and ideals. The common loyalty that binds all Britons together is the loyalty to ideal, not to England, Scotland, Canada or Australia.

Our next stopping place was Manchester at which city we arrived in the evening of July 17th and where we were free to spend the evening as we desired. The following morning the ladies went by motor coach through Cheshire and Derbyshire, visiting enroute Bramhall Hall, a 15th century building, Haddon Hall, Chatsworth House, the Derbyshire residence of the Duke of Devonshire, by whose courtesy they were shown the house and grounds and were later entertained to luncheon.

The gentlemen made a visit to the Manchester Royal Exchange, which is said to be the world's greatest place of assembly of traders for direct business transactions. It is an immense building with a ground space of 1.7 acres. The membership comprise 11,000, representing many and varied interests, chiefly associated with the cotton industry. The building was interesting. Upon the walls were engraved suitable inscriptions. "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor rather than silver and gold" and "who seek to find eternal treasure must use no guile in weight or measure," legends that may be regarded as particularly appropriate for those who daily trade or barter within sight of them.

Our stay at Liverpool was so short we did not have time to visit the docks but we did see Manchester which already is challenging Hull's claim to be the third port in the Kingdom, at least in value of imports and exports. The distinguishing feature of Manchester is that it is an artificial port, to a greater extent than any other of the large ports. "The port of Liverpool," says the descriptive pamphlet placed in our hands, "with its geographical situation and propinquity to the fairway of the sea, was an act of God. The port of Manchester, with no such inherent blessing, was an act of man, who carved in out of the earth and set its waters there." And this is true. Manchester is a port because of the canal dredged for 35 miles into the industrial heart of England. This canal has a depth of 28 feet and will accommodate vessels up to 15,000 tons. It was commenced by private initiative but when the cost exceeded the estimates, the corporation of Manchester came to the rescue, and now appoints one more than half of the Board of Directors of the Manchester Ship Canal Co. On the occasion of our visit, we saw large vessels loading and unloading for and from all parts of the world, in the port. The development of trade on the canal has been very rapid of late years, and the authorities have great faith in the future. They believe that water borne traffic, will to a growing extent, find its way to this inland port, situated in the heart of the chief industrial region in Great Britain. And they are prepared to meet every demand as it rises, so that their enterprises may bear the richest possible fruit. There is evidently the keenest rivalry with Liverpool, which suddenly finds a rival challenging her supremacy almost at her very doors.

An interesting device at the canal is the aqueduct for carrying the Bridgewater canal across the ship canal at a higher level. This is done by means of a steel box, which swings on a pivot like a swing bridge, retaining the water inside. The weight of the steel chamber and of the water in it is 1,600 tons. It is a very clever expedient for overcoming the difficulty occasioned by having two canals cross one another at different levels. Manchester was hospitality itself and we were entertained by newspaper proprietors, ship canal officials and city officials on two different occasions. There was evidence of pride on their part for their city and justly so far Manchester has a well planned business section with wide streets and up-to-date stores.

Stockport only several miles away from Manchester was selected as a convenient place to hold a newspaper conference with the members of the Lancashire, Chester and Derbyshire Federation of Weekly Newspapers. At this interesting session, Canadian learned of the splendid advertising rates in vogue in provincial England. Here also we had an opportunity of seeing some of the important industries among them being Christy's Hat works, Diesel Engine works, Linen and Spinning works. Stockport has a population of 126,000 people. Situated in the counties of Cheshire and Lancashire, the river Mersey passing through the centre.

MOVING SETTLERS

Through the joint arrangement between the Dominion and Provincial Governments and the railways, about 100 families have been moved from the dry areas in the south-eastern part of the province to new locations in the foothill country and in different districts in northern Alberta, the Provincial Department of Agriculture assisting in getting these settlers located. The provincial department has not been able to get listings of land for settlers along the C.P.R. lines as freely as expected, although it is understood that farmers are going into the districts north-west and south-west of Calgary, and in the Cardston and Pincher Creek districts. It is apparent that these farmers are finding no difficulty in securing locations when they visit these districts themselves. Along the C.N.R. lines a number of listings has been secured, the boards of trade in the various towns offering their services in settling the farmers who move to these districts. Arrangements have now been made whereby farmers living along the C.P.R. lines in the south may move to points on the C.N.R. by paying one-third of their freight bill as far as Calgary, the transfer point. These farmers moving from C.N.R. points in the south to C.P.R. points in the north are also asked to pay one third of the freight to the junction point. A large number of farmers in the dry areas of the south took advantage during the harvest season of the arrangements made by the provincial department to provide labor for them in the harvest fields. The demand has been such that those farmers who wished work of this nature had no difficulty in procuring it.

HISTORY OF GOLF

The Beaverton Express gives this short history of golf: In 1492 the parliament of Scotland enacted a law to discourage the game of golf. The reason given was that the people of Scotland became so absorbed in this game that they were neglecting archery and other sports which were necessary to train men to defend their country. Any game which can take the attention of the Scotch from business and their country's welfare is certainly some game. The encyclopaedias say that golf originated in Holland, as a game which was played upon the ice and was called "kolf". In spite of the Dutch tradition it is fair to say that golf is a Scotch game and carries with it memories and methods of that strong and serious people.

A Scot after a week's stay in London at a friend's expense promised to send him a fowl from Scotland on his return home. It never arrived; but the Scot did a year later for another holiday with his generous English friend. When they parted again the latter said, "Do you remember you kindly promised, a year ago to send me a fowl? I never got it." "Aye man," said the Scot, "I mind that fine, Ye see it got better."

BUY WITHIN EMPIRE

Canada spent over five hundred million dollars in the United States last year says the Vernon News. Think of it. If that amount could be spent in Canada instead of in the United States the coming year we would be the most prosperous country on the face of the earth. In an interview in London, after returning from Scandinavia, Mr. E. W. Beatty put forward an excellent argument in favor of imperial preference or any other plan which will serve to increase trade between Canada and the Mother Country. "Owing to the fact that sterling is not at par, Canada, he said, was shut out from the greatest financial market of the world, and British investors who would like to take advantage of opportunities in Canada were handicapped. The difficulty is that Canada sells to Great Britain, every year, many million dollars worth of goods more than she imports. At the same time, she buys from the United States many million dollars worth of goods more than she exports to that country. The settlement has to be made through New York on the basis of New York exchange and both Canada and the Motherland are losers by it. If the trade could be evened up in some way a fair path would be created over which capital could roll into Canada, and with the capital, no doubt, would come immigration of an excellent type.

BOBBED HAIR MAIDS

A smartly bobbed and shingled young newspaper woman of New York City, who was chasing a "special" on the Prince for her paper, got a pointed bit of copy from His Royal Highness the other day. She asked the Prince if he liked the style of bobbed hair. "No," he replied, promptly, "I'm afraid I don't." And then, seeing the correspondent's embarrassment, he added: "But, of course, I may be old fashioned." But it is reported that the Prince confessed to choosing a dancing partner on the voyage over because she had not bobbed her hair.

The estimated wealth in 1922 of some leading nations is as follows: United States $320,000,000,000; United Kingdom, $120,000,000,000; France $90,000,000,000; Italy, $35,000,000,000; Japan $22,500,000,000; Canada and Australia, $27,000,000,000.

It would appear to us that Winston Churchill is fast coming to the fore in British political circles. It is said his ambition is to lead a United Conservative and Liberal opposition to Labor, and his speech delivered at Edinburgh recently when he challenged the Liberals to state explicitly any principle which divides them fundamentally from the Conservatives. He ridiculed the difference between the two parties on the tariff issue, but came out boldly for Empire preference. He denounced Socialism. Churchill has decided to contest the Epping division of Essex and if he does he may win easily.

MILO NEWS

The Marquis School Fair was held at Milo on September 23rd. The number of competing schools was not as great as in previous years, although the class of exhibit was exceptionally good. Despite the windy day, which made watching the sports rather unpleasant, there was a good attendance of children, parents and others interested. Mr. Wainwright acted as chairman and was ably supported by Mr. and Mrs. Becker, joint secretaries. The final results have not yet come to hand but will be published later.

A dispatch from South Africa indicates that considerable apprehension is felt among the whites of that land that they are being gradually crowded out by the natives. Africa belonged originally to the blacks and as there is no race suicide practiced among them, the blacks are bound to dominate.

Lloyds New Register says that in 1923, although many new ships were built, the carrying capacity of the merchant fleets of the world decreased almost 1,143,000 tons. The merchant marine of Germany and Japan are forging ahead faster than those of their rivals, while the U. S. is declining rapidly.

One of the unique sights seen at Chatsworth House, England, the home of the Duke of Devonshire, is a weeping willow tree, made entirely of copper. It is a perfect model of a tree, with leaves, branches, trunks, etc., firmly fashioned. When a tap at its base is turned the whole tree becomes a fountain, with water springing from its leaves and branches, a truly interesting sight and one only to be seen in such a place as provincial England.

Rust in wheat can destroy the years work of farmers and it is gratifying to learn that rapid progress is being made in developing a wheat that is rust resistant. A conference of scientists met at Winnipeg recently and dealt with the rust problem in Western Canada. It is generally conceded that disease in plant life can be conquered as malaria diabetes and typhoid have been conquered. Scientists will perform a great work in controlling or resisting rust damage to wheat in this country.
